DESIGN NOTES:

Andrews McMeel wanted a tabloid newspaper parody design for their latest offering, Celebrity Diss & Tell, and turned to longtime collaborator Buster Designs to make it authentic.

"MARILYN MONROE was fabulous, but ... TOO FAT!"

CELEBRITY

Diss & Tell

Stars Talk
About Each Other

PLUS:

"How difficult can it be to fly a plane?
I mean, John Travolta learned how."

Boze Hadleigh

Today's celebrities are more spoiled, pampered, ridiculous, and richer than ever. If we can't diss them, who can we diss? —comedian KATHY GRIFFIN

People like Paris and Britney and Mariah and Tom Cruise need to be slapped down a bit, to remind them they can't always get their way and we don't always believe what they shovel out. —comedian MARIO CANTONE

From CELEBRITY Diss & Tell

With his womanly voice, stark white skin, and Medusa hair, his gash of red lipstick, heavy eyeliner, almost nonexistent nose, and lopsided face, Michael Jackson was making this appearance to scotch all rumors that he is not quite normal. —CRAIG BROWN

He is the least weird man I've ever known. —ELIZABETH TAYLOR, on Michael Jackson

We had to sew the fly on his pants shut. We were finding that every time we went past Bill Clinton, the zipper was undone. —VICKY BROWN, spokeswoman for Madame Tussauds Wax Museum, regarding the Clinton mannequin that inspired familiarity from too many visitors

Boze Hadleigh is the author of more than fifteen books, including Celebrity Feuds! and Hollywood and Whine. A winning Jeopardy! contestant, he holds a master's degree in journalism and speaks five languages. He divides his time between Beverly Hills, California, and Sydney, Australia, when he isn't traveling the world.
